

Executive Training on Navigation and Survivorship

An Online Program on the Nuts and Bolts of Creating and Sustaining Cancer Patient Navigation and Survivorship Programs Available at No Cost

Target Audiences:

- Administrators
- Comprehensive Cancer Control Practitioners
- Nurses
- Physicians
- Patient Navigators
- Social Workers

The George Washington University (GW) Cancer Institute now offers the popular Executive Training on Navigation and Survivorship at no cost through its Online Academy. The training is open to anyone and includes continuing education credit for nurses and social workers at no cost. Through a series of self-paced modules the training walks participants through:

- Identifying Need
- Planning Your Program (Models, Components, Tools, Goal Setting and more)
- Funding and Sustaining Your Program
- Evaluating Your Program
- Creating a Business Plan

Participants have access to:

- Interactive presentations
- The Guide for Program Development, which summarizes the latest research, guidelines, care standards, best practices, case studies, and tools in one place
- The Program Development Workbook, which includes a set of activities to help you apply what you have learned and create your own custom program plan
- Additional resources

Get started in 3 easy steps:

1. Visit the GW Cancer Institute Online Academy at <http://tinyurl.com/GWOnlineAcademy>
2. Login or register for an account
3. Use enrollment code: ETrain (case sensitive)

Continuing Education Credits for Nurses and Social Workers (8 hrs)

For more information contact: gwci@gwu.edu

