Academic Policy Changes for Health, Human Function, and Rehabilitation Sciences and Biomedical Laboratory Sciences Students

(1) Incompletes/Extensions
The extraordinary circumstances of the coronavirus render every student eligible for an incomplete in any class from Spring 2020.

(2) Academic Standing
Determinations of probation and/or suspension will be held in abeyance this semester. This includes students on a continued probation status in the Spring 2020 semester.

- Any student who would otherwise be placed on Academic Probation at the end of the Spring 2020 semester would instead receive an academic warning.
- Students who are currently on a Continued Probation status would instead receive an academic warning for Spring 2020, if their cumulative GPA is still below the minimum scholarship requirements at the end of this semester. The credits attempted in Spring 2020 would not count against the credit counts for the probationary term.
- There will be no Academic Probation or Continued Probation notation on the academic transcript for Spring 2020.

At this time, we anticipate returning to our normal academic review processes at the end of Summer 2020. Students receiving academic warnings in Spring 2020 are required to speak with their academic advisors re: potential adjustments to the Summer 2020 schedule and GPA targets moving forward.
