Policy

The recruitment and appointment of residents to training programs sponsored by The George Washington University School of Medicine and Health Sciences is based on and is in compliance with both the institutional and program requirements of the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (ACGME). The process of application, eligibility, selection and appointment of residents to a training program is the responsibility of the Chair, the Program Director, and/or departmental faculty with oversight by the Office of Graduate Medical Education and the Graduate Medical Education Committee. Each residency training program must establish and implement formal policies for Resident Eligibility and Selection. The George Washington University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer and is committed to providing employment opportunities to all qualified applicants without regard to race, color, religion, age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, or protected veteran status. The training program’s written Policy for Eligibility and Selection of Residents must include a description of the criteria for eligibility and selection according to the following guidelines:

Recruitment

Candidates for programs (applicants who are invited for an interview) must be informed in writing or by electronic means, of the terms, conditions, and benefits of their appointment to the ACGME-accredited program, either in effect at the time of the interview or that will be in effect at the time of the applicant’s eventual appointment. Information that is provided must include: stipends, benefits, vacation, leaves of absence, professional liability coverage, and disability insurance accessible to residents/fellows; and health insurance accessible to residents/fellows and their eligible dependents. The NRMP requires programs to provide to applicants all institutional and program policies regarding eligibility for appointment to a residency training position, including expected or required academic, educational, or prior training credentials; pre-employment drug testing and background checks; and information relevant to licensure status or visa status. This information is updated annually on the GME website before resident interviews commence. A signed acknowledgement of this communication of information from each applicant is required by NRMP.

Selection

All George Washington University School of Medicine and Health Sciences graduate medical education programs must select from eligible applicants on the basis of their preparedness and ability to benefit from the residency program. In selecting from among qualified applicants for first-year positions, all residency programs must participate in the National Resident Matching Program (NRMP) and the Electronic Residency Application Service (ERAS) where such is available.
Each residency program must establish criteria for the selection of residents. Criteria should include aptitude, academic credentials, personal characteristics, letters of recommendation, and the ability to communicate.

In addition, each program director may set forth specific requirements as determined by the area of specialty interest.

Eligibility

According to the ACGME Institutional Requirements, Section IV., applicants with one of the following qualifications are eligible for appointment to accredited residency programs:
