Global Network for Spirituality & Health

Aims, Goals, & Objectives
AIM

The Global Network for Spirituality and Health was established to promote the transformation of health systems by integrating interprofessional spiritual care as an essential aspect of health, healing and compassionate, person-centered care.
GOALS & OBJECTIVES

GOAL: To convene an inclusive, diverse and multidisciplinary network of clinicians, researchers, educators, policy makers and health communities, including patients and caregivers.

Objective 1.1: To invite participants to advance the field of spirituality and health by collaborating and sharing resources and ideas;

Objective 1.2: To promote dissemination of research findings, curricula, policies and clinical models and guidelines, and engaging in ongoing dialogue to help empower passionate people to transform healthcare systems globally.

GOAL: To catalyze innovative thinking and action related to health care that addresses the comprehensive needs of both patients and professional and family caregivers, including their spiritual needs.

Objective 2.1: to raise awareness of the significant or sacred as a relevant dimension in clinical, psycho-social and spiritual care;

Objective 2.2: to bridge disciplines, worldviews and cultures, while building up the knowledge and evidence base related to spirituality and health.
ABOUT GNSAH

The Global Network for Spirituality & Health (GNSAH) is a member-driven initiative comprised of clinicians, researchers, educators, policy makers, religious/spiritual leaders, and health organizations—over 500 members strong. As a global community, GNSAH brings together resources, advocacy, and reach to influence more compassionate systems of health for all human beings.

OUR PRIORITY AREAS:

- Share findings and spiritual care practices among GNSAH members
- Collaborate with global organizations and leaders
- Identify emerging best practices
- Provide a platform for large-scale advocacy

GNSAH is housed and supported by the George Washington University Institute for Spirituality and Health (GWish). To learn more about our programs, please visit our website: https://smhs.gwu.edu/gwish/
